Adoption Groups for Kids and Teens

Bridgepointe Therapy's Groups combine fun activities with exploring feelings and teaching strategies for how to handle adoption-related experiences.

Groups are a powerful way for adopted kids and teens feel like they fit in and belong, and to share their questions and experiences around adoption in a safe, supportive place. Participants benefit from positive interactions with their peers, relating to others and being understood, and feeling "normal" that they aren't the only ones with these feelings or experiences.
